

Dani Levy - 19

“Someday I am going to own my own catering business, so it just made sense to me to get a job as a waitress. I am learning what goes on in the kitchen, behind the scenes, and how to present food to customers, and the owners have even been nice enough to talk with me a little bit about hints and tips for owning my own business.

Don't get me wrong, this job can be high-stress when we hit our peak hours, but that is also when you really see people thrive under pressure. And after you have done it awhile, it just becomes a habit to dig in and work as a team. If you have ever played Overcooked or a game like that – then you'd understand.
