

Paige Collier - 31

“ I am proud to be the postal worker who has made friends with every dog on my route! When I applied for the job, I was just looking for work. However, during the interview, I realized I might actually like this kind of work. I like being active and outside. I like the routine of my neighborhoods, but also the variety of who I might see and speak to, the comings and goings of people, and the way the neighborhood changes from year to year. The people on my routes recognize me and know my name. They are grateful and kind. And with time, and a pocket full of treats, I have now made friends with the neighborhood dogs. They now recognize me and greet me.

I am fortunate enough to have a route where I walk to each house, but I have coworkers who prefer their routes because the mailboxes are on the street and they can just drive up and deliver. It's been a really cool job that I wouldn't have thought of without that initial interview. ”
